

World Book Day Activities

INSPIRATION: MAKING SMALL CHANGES

In the video, Jess talks about how making a few changes to your everyday life can have a huge impact on the planet - for example turning lights off, walking to school, and using less plastic.

1.

Create a list of small changes and attach it somewhere you can see it (for example as a classroom display, or on the fridge at home!). With your family, tick off each time one of you makes a small change. Keep track of who makes the most changes each week!

2.

Write a poem about a world in which we solve all of the environmental issues that Jess talks about in her book. Begin your poem with the words, 'Imagine a world'

INSPIRATION:

THE IMPORTANCE OF KINDNESS

In her book Jess explains that 'kindness is key'. By acting in a way that is kind to plants, animals, the environment, and other people, we have the power to save our planet.

3.

Think about how any of your qualities, characteristics, and talents could help to make the world a better place for humans and/or animals. Think of an example of a time you have shown thought and kindness to the environment and living things in it. Write this down and think of other things that you could do to show kindness to the environment and living things. E.g- making a bug hotel, picking up litter.

4.

CREATIVE CHALLENGE FROM JESS FRENCH!

Write a letter to one of your friends or family detailing all the important things you've learned about how you can protect the planet - try to include some of the facts and important information from the video!

For the afternoon lesson, choose a page, character, setting, plot from your favourite book. Get ready to share at our afternoon meeting.

Be ready to talk about what you like about it and why.
