

Your turn

Which sentence is punctuated correctly?

- In France, Liza and I swam in the Atlantic Ocean.
- In France, Liza and I swam in the Atlantic ocean.
- In france, Liza and I swam in the atlantic ocean.
- In France, Liza and i swam in the Atlantic Ocean.

In France, Liza and I swam in the Atlantic Ocean.

- In France, Liza and I swam in the Atlantic ocean.
- In france, Liza and I swam in the atlantic ocean.
- In France, Liza and i swam in the Atlantic Ocean.

Which words require a capital letter? Why?

Insert the missing capital letters into the sentence below.

in august, i always go to the notting hill carnival in london with auntie maxine.

In August, I always go to the Notting
Hill Carnival in London with Auntie Maxine.

Match each sentence to the most likely end punctuation.
Use each punctuation mark only once.

The Ancient Egyptians built pyramids

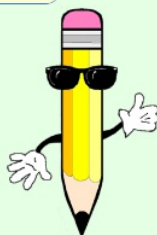

.

What incredible buildings they are

?

How did they transport the limestone blocks

!

The Ancient Egyptians built pyramids

.

What incredible buildings they are

?

How did they transport the limestone blocks

!

Rewrite the passage below, inserting the missing capital letters and end punctuation.

i stood in the graveyard outside grimble mansion and watched elliott scramble over the gate in front of me he landed in a rose bush and yelled,
his shout echoing over the island my hand shivered as the lantern glowed dimly and my eye caught the figure of a girl dressed in white could this be the ghost of grimble mansion i stepped closer "who are you " i whispered maybe the legend that i'd heard was right

I stood in the graveyard outside Grimble Mansion and watched Elliot
scramble over the gate in front of me. He landed in a rose bush and yelled,
his shout echoing over the island. My hand shivered as the lantern glowed
dimly and my eye caught the figure of a girl dressed in white. Could this be the ghost of Grimble Mansion? I stepped closer. "Who are you?" I whispered. Maybe the legend that I'd heard was right.